Read 200 Books Before Middle School for Future Success!

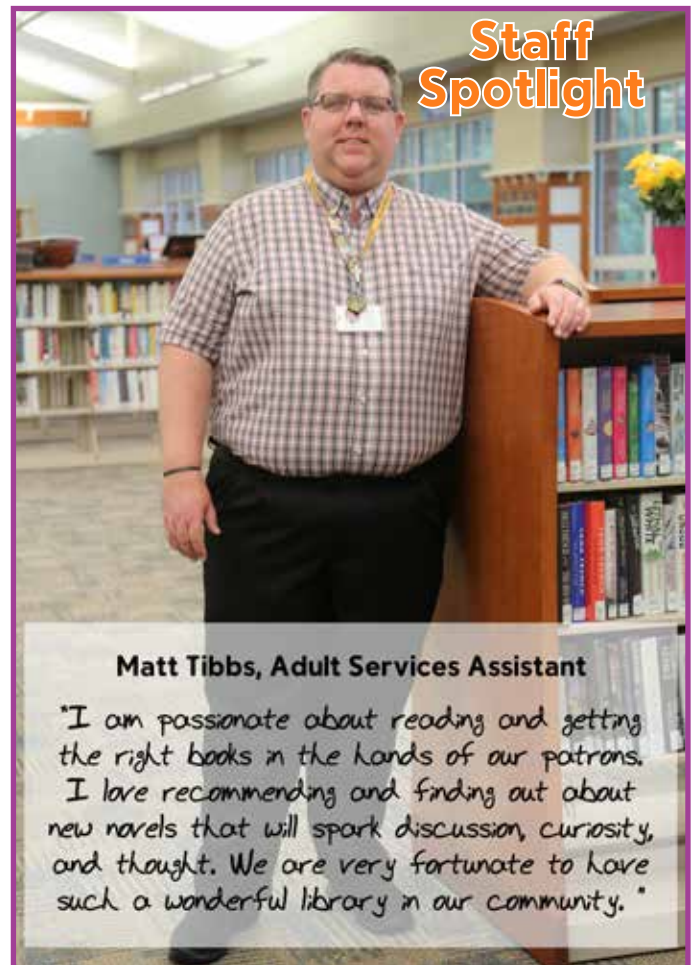

We challenge you to read 200 Books Before Middle School! While children are in early elementary school, they are learning to read. But as they hit third grade and beyond, they are reading to learn. That's why we developed 200 Books Before Middle School. It's a fun and easy way to work on skills for success and find books they love.

This program may seem overwhelming at first, but it's designed to take years to complete. Your child can pick up a journal at either library location and get started! Each time they read 25 books, bring their journal back to the library to pick up a prize.

Looking for book recommendations? Search our online catalog for 200 Books Before Middle school. You'll find our virtual shelf that contains lots of suggested titles curated by our staff.

Congratulations Nyla and Zyan Draper for finishing 1000 Books Before Kindergarten!

Matt Tibbs, Adult Services Assistant

"I am passionate about reading and getting the right books in the hands of our patrons. I love recommending and finding out about new novels that will spark discussion, curiosity, and thought. We are very fortunate to have such a wonderful library in our community."
